Reasons for Allowance

The arguments in the 8/4/05 Remarks were persuasive.

The independent claims recite displaying a log of telephone calls including source and call subject information and limitations for the following:

"converting said portion of said voice message to text" and "exporting said portion and said source information into a graphical user interface that displays a log of telephone calls including the source information and information about the subject matter of the voice message"

Some prior art of record teaches displaying a log of telephone calls but not converting a portion of voice messages to text for display as call subject with the telephone calls. Some other prior art teaches converting portions of voice messages to text, displaying call subject information but not a log of telephone calls. The prior art is not analogous and it is not obvious to combine them to achieve the limitations. New search updates revealed no other prior art which teaches the limitations in the context of the claims. Therefore, claims 26-43 are indicated allowable.
